VIA OVERNIGHT DELIVERY

Ms. Jocelyn Boyd Chief Clerk and Administrator South Carolina Public Service Commission Synergy Business Park 101 Executive Center Drive Columbia, SC 29210

> United Telephone Company of the Carolinas LLC d/b/a CenturyLink Re:

Notification of Intent to Discontinue Equal Access Scripting

Dear Ms. Boyd:

United Telephone Company of the Carolinas LLC d/b/a CenturyLink ("CenturyLink") writes to notify the Commission of CenturyLink's intent to discontinue equal access scripting for in-state long distance services in light of recent federal action on this issue. The FCC has found that this requirement is no longer necessary for interLATA long distance services, finding the requirement provides little benefit while imposing costs and burdens on a disproportionate few carriers. Based on the FCC's elimination of equal access scripting at the federal level, CenturyLink intends to discontinue equal access scripting for in-state long distance services to create regulatory parity and avoid customer confusion.

As the Commission is aware, following divestiture in 1984, the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC") imposed equal access requirements in order to implement dialing parity for newly competitive interLATA long distance services. Under the equal access scripting requirement, incumbent local exchange carriers ("ILECs") had to inform new local exchange customers that they could obtain stand-alone long distance service from other carriers and offer to read the customers a list of carriers offering long distance service in their area. At that time, competition in the interstate long distance market was in its early stages. The equal access scripting requirement helped ensure that customers fully understood that they had a choice of interLATA long distance service providers.

Since that time, competition in the long distance market has flourished and customers enjoy numerous competitive alternatives. The development of competition, among other things, prompted AT&T in 2007 to ask the FCC to forbear from enforcing the equal access scripting requirements it had imposed. The FCC granted AT&T's request, concluding that "competition for stand-alone long distance services would function better absent the potential market-place distorting effects of the current [equal access] scripting requirement." This forbearance, however, applied only to Regional Bell Operating Companies ("RBOCs") and independent ILECs like CenturyLink remained subject to the scripting rules.

In 2013, the FCC extended this forbearance to all independent ILECs. The FCC relied on much of the same rationale as it had in 2007, finding that equal access scripting provides little, if any, benefit, imposes a disproportionate burden on independent ILECs, and is no longer necessary given the high level of competition in the market:

We conclude that the EA Scripting Requirement provides de minimis, if any, benefits. At the same time, it imposes costs on independent ILECs. Their customer service representatives must spend time advising customers that they can obtain stand-alone long distance service and be prepared to read lists of carriers that can provide such service if customers request this. Given the lack of benefits generated by this requirement, we also conclude that its removal would foster competition by removing regulatory requirements and the resulting costs that affect only ILECs subject to the rule and not their competitors. We therefore forbear from the requirement for all ILECs that have not previously been granted forbearance.<sup>3</sup>

In light of this action by the FCC, CenturyLink files the instant letter to notify the Commission that CenturyLink intends to discontinue equal access scripting for in-state long distance services in South Carolina. CenturyLink is not aware of a specific Commission requirement to provide equal access scripting for in-state long distance services, but files this notice out of an abundance of caution. CenturyLink respectfully submits that discontinuing equal access scripting will serve the public interest by creating regulatory parity among inter- and intrastate long distance services and avoiding customer confusion from disparate treatment of similar services.
